

Abstract of the Disclosure

5 A method and an apparatus for retouching a photographed image is provided. The method includes steps for recognizing an image region which is to be retouched in the photographed image and for retouching the recognized image region. Thus, the photographed image can be retouched easily using the digital camera by which the image was photographed without the use of a computer in an environment where portable printers for digital camera are supplied.